

You Tube Videos

We have put three videos on "you tube." Two are flute music in Yosemite National Park and one is an interview on rites of intensification. The interview explains how important rites of intensification are to education and healing and how stories can substitute for rites of intensification where a cultural, religious or spiritual opportunity is not available. Take a look:

Workshop

Gentle Place is developing a workshop for therapists and counselors in collaboration with Arajeje Woods. It will be offered as a method to enhance healing and growth by various professionals involved with education and healing. If you have interest in attending this workshop please let us know.

Travels

Gentle Place, Micro Steps (along with individual donors) and two universities, sponsored Steven for a month-long trip to China. He presented lectures centered around the concept of "drawing forth" the potential found in every human. In the process he often used his stories and music. The pictures above are from the conference titled "Comparative Research on Modern and Contemporary Chinese and Western Art Education." You can see the full report at:

Spin-off Web Site

In January Gentle Place launched a spin-off web site called Yen 9. Yen 9 is offering web hosting for $1 per month plus a one time set-up fee of $10. It includes a free sub-domain name, a knowledge base and links to free software. This will enable individuals and groups to create their own web presence and share their thoughts, post their resumes, advertise their art or facilitate their local organization -- all for $1 a month. All this is done using easy to use technologies to create either a traditional web site or a blog. No gimmicks or hidden fees! Check it out at:
